

I love serving on the Sac City School Board. I have worked hard. I have contributed. I have helped our schools make progress.

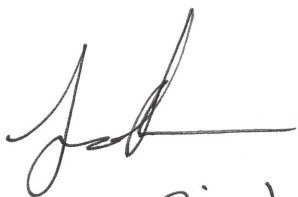

Importantly, I have learned that accountability is the key to our collective success. Parents, teachers, principals, and School Board Members all must take responsibility and hold one another accountable for what we do and when we fail.

Facing a recall is an important part of a culture of accountability. In my case, it is an opportunity to share what I have done in advance of re-election next November. I will always acknowledge when I fall short and always celebrate our successes.

This recall got started because the School Board supported holding a teacher accountable for causing $22,185.72 of damage to her classroom and potentially exposing her students to asbestos. Parents raised concerns.

The Administration decided her mistake warranted discipline. The School Board supported HR's decision that a school transfer, rather than termination, was appropriate. In my judgement, failing to hold this teacher accountable would send the wrong message to youngsters.

My pledge in this recall is to present my record to you and trust your judgment.
